THE POLICE CAPTAINS.

The Long Expected Reorganization the Police Force Come at Last.

A change of captains throughout the entire police force was made yesterday afternoon by order of the Board of Police. The Committee on Rules and Discipline, who had this matter in charge, reported yesterday to the Board, and the change place with somebody else. When the things existed which they saw must be suddenly and soon swept out of sight. The Commissioners apon which they were called to govern, and before they could do anything in the way of putting the force upon a better looting they felt that the old foundations ought to be cleared away. Looking into the matter did not improve its aspect to the moniring sight, and a radical change was resolved What this change should be was a question ng discussed, and each member of the Board set himself to work endeavoring to ascertain the the surest and most effective means of answering the problem. It was not so much that they had to that offered a cover for crime-the profits of which might be participated in by the authorities-as it was a general loosening of all disciplinary ties and a sort of belief that had gained credence with the officers that their places were created for their personal benefit. This was, of course, the result officers that their places were created for their personal benefit. This was, of course, the result of a long

system of corrections of the result of a long

at the very bead of the department in the Board itself and the method of promotion in use with the verious Boards that succeeded each other.

The news of the action of the Board spread through the department quicky, and made a sensation among the men unapproached for excitement since the establishment of the force. Nothing else was talked of last night. The boidness and suddenness of the move seemed to have struck amazement into them, and they began seriously to think matters had an ugly aspect. Something has been for a long time expected, and something important, too, out what it would be when it came no one could even strings. Like a mighty monster before springing on his prey the Board has lain dermant for a long time, but it has made the bound at last, and lighted with its feeth upon a place where the bite will not be readily forgotten. Promises of cruptions have been hanging threateningly in the air, but yesterday the bubble burst like the explosion of a big balloon, and threateningly in the air, but yesterday the bubble burst like the explosion of a big balloon, and threat and thrity passengers who were riding safely are lying sprawling on their backs. While these rumors swam in the lofty atmosphere each officer thought the blow would light on some other head than his. In his particular case irlends were numerous and strong and he could not be improved, but the voicano has rumbled and rumbled, and cast its vomit forth in the shape of an order that sends one nurrying down the hill in the same order of rapidity. None have time to look behind them. It is a general scamper—a regular sauce qui peat. The meaning of it is, too, that they can save themselves only by a thorough reorganization of their ideas of the method, means and manner of carrying on the work of the department. It is needless to say the captains were not pleased. No, not one of them liked

The Committee on Rules and Piscipline, after mature deliberation, would respectfully recommend as one of the means of securing greater efficiency in the Police Department the adoption of the following resolutions:—Resolved, That the following named captains be and are hereby assigned to duty in the respective precincts bereinafter named and set opposite to their names:—

THE BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.

The billiard tournament was resumed yesterday afternoon at two o'clock with a game between Rudolphe and Daniels. There was a tolerably good attendance for a matinée, but not so good as on the day previous. The play was rather poor, but the game was interesting, as both men kept pretty close together. The first game was between Rudolphe and Daniels, the former winning by a score of 300 to 227. The second game was between Garnier and Slosson, the latter being badly beaten, only scoring 46. The evening performance was a fitting triumpn with which to close the day, there being sabout 2,500 persons present. The first game was between yignaux and bloom. After a splendid contest, lasting two hours and ten minutes, vignaux was declared the winner by a score of 300 to 234. Daily and bloom next came forward and played and game, Daily being the winner. The following as the score of the games up to date:—

Celel wation of the Occasion in This City -Grand Mongolian Banquet in Bax; er Street-Kites of All Shapes and month of the year is November. The festivals during t ws season are chiefly observed by kite nying. T. bey continue about ten days, and old and young par toppate in the amusement. In the Middle Kingd am, besides this practice, there are grand milit try processions to offer sacrifice to the standard-be. ther god. Various warlike utensils platform and marked honors paid the imperial energy. The Chinese are noted for strict observance of their national customs, both at home and abroad. The colony of these people in New York are not behindhand in this respect. As far as opportunities and circumstances per-mitted, our Mongolian residents, who are constantly increasing in numbers, nad their least of kite flying. It was necessary to go some distance from the city to indulge in the pastume, but the variety of the kites, their singular forms and variegated colors were remarkable for ingentity and taste. Some were in the shape of opectacles, others represented ash, various kinds of birds and butterfies, and several resembled ment sailing through the air. They ascended to a considerable distance from the earth, and were really in veresting objects to look upon. The great leature of the decasion, however, was a Grand Mongolman Banquer at the club roces in Baxter street a few evenings since. The party that sat down to the table embraced nearly every Chinaman in the city and vicinity. The poor and rich fared allike, and there were mutual congratulations and good wishes for prosperity in the inture. The bill of fare included a large variety of dishes only known to the Chinese custime. There was an abundance of gelatimous food, which is most acceptable to the Mongolian palate. Fish and pountry were in abundance, and rice, which forms so Deportant an article at all Chinese means, was supplied without girm. The company did not rise until ar early hour in the morning, everything having passed of in the most agreeable and harmonious manner. A risit to but an old Asiatic was engaged in restoring the rooms to their former Oriental magnificence. The dinner was beld in these apartments, which necessitated the removal of much of the furniture of the temple. Although there is no weekly performance of wership there are stated occasions for communicating traditional customs, the great changes in nature, doing honors to before a fantiquity and for the worship of imaginary divinities, which are of all degrees of rank, from the originator of the universe to the pod of the kitchen and pigstye. The temple will be in proper condition to-day for the performance of ceremonies.

The CHINESE IN THE CITY.

The Chinese in the city are very industrious and peaceable. They nearly all reside in Baxter street. Some are married to white women and have families. They occupy abartments in tenement houses, which are comfortably furnished. Unlike their fellow countrymen in the Pacific States, they do not live apart and swarm in miserable shantles. They seem to be far more at home in New York than in California, and have not to encounter the same popular prejudice that prevails at the other side of the Continent. They celebrated the feast of kites without any interference or anneyance.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Lewis May, well known for her many works of charity, died suddenly on Monday afternoon in the forty-sixth year of her age. Mrs. May was the wife of the banker Mr. Lewis May, who is also At the time of her death she was Vice President Hospital and a memoer of the Hebrew Home and other charitable societies. She was a lady of great redinement and culture. Her funeral takes place this morning, from No. 386 Fifth avenue, where she was temporarily residing with her mother.

Mr. Edgar H. Reeves, senior partner in the house of E. H. Reeves & Co., manufacturers and dealers in agricultural implements, seeds, &c., Water street, died on Tuesday, at his residence, No. 625 Pacific street, Brooklyn, of congestion of the brain. He was one of the oldest and best-known men in his branch of trade in this city and known men in his branch of trade in this city and had a very large acquaintance in mercantile circles and among the farming community especially of Long Island. His kindness to tillers of the son who were in distress was widely known, his help being often extended to the aid of those who, lacking the necessary capital to carry on agricultural or gardening enterprises, were willing to toil for their own and their families' support by the sweat of their brows. To Such Mr. Reeves was a ready and firm friend. He leaves a family of nine children. The funeral win take place on Friday morning.

On Monday atternoon last, at three o'clock, Mr. Henry Stants, one of the weattnest landowners of Dutchess county, departed this life. His residence was at Red Hook, and he will be buried from that place. The disease which terminated his life was apoplexy. His age was seventy-eight. In 1860 deceased represented the old Twelfth Congressional district in the National Democratic Convention held at Charleston, S. C., prior to the war, and through life was a consistent democrat in politics. He was a member of the Lutheran Church, and leaves a son and two daughters to inherit his was eaves a son and two daughters to inherit his vast
